The average truck age continues to increase across most European countries in 2021. Greece has the oldest truck fleet at 22.7 years. Whereas Austria (6.6 years) and Denmark (7.5) have surpassed Luxembourg (7.7) as youngest truck fleet. In Eastern and Southern Europe, where companies cannot necessarily afford to buy new vehicles and depend on the second-hand car market, trucks will stay on the road longer and will need solutions for decarbonisation.
